Navigating the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic has presented significant stress and uncertainty for many health care workers. It is important to prioritize your own health and wellbeing. Self-care is taking time to do things that improve your physical health and mental health. Self-care can help to manage stress, improve mood, and increase energy. Self-care activities look different for everyone and even in small amounts can be beneficial in relieving stress. For self-care ideas, as well as mental health resources that are available for additional support, visit <https://comms.tbrhsc.net/informed/self-care-for-health-care-workers/>.

For the first time, our Hospital has achieved the highest possible designation from Accreditation Canada, 'Accredited with Exemplary Standing'. This accomplishment is due to the exceptional work and dedication of our staff, physicians, learners and volunteers to providing safe and quality care for the patients and families of Northwestern Ontario. To celebrate this success, we will be providing a small token of our appreciation for the exceptional work you do each and every day. On August 31, September 7 and September 10 we will celebrate together with ice cream and prize draws. Details will be shared in the Daily Informed Newsletter. Congratulations once again on this historic achievement.

Finally, all Hospital staff are encouraged to check their contact information on the intranet's 411 to ensure it is up to date. As 411 is a self-service application, staff can log in using their network credentials and manage their own records. Please contact Robert Srigley, Systems Specialist, Information Technology at Robert.Srigley@tbh.net for support or if you have any questions. This is also an opportune time to update your voicemail greeting, especially if you are working remotely or are on vacation. If you require support, please connect with Help Desk at Help.Desk@tbh.net. Thank you for your support in ensuring the contact information for your team is current and easily accessible.
