

Indigenous Healing, Wiidooktaadyang, and Ways to Wellness

October 18, 2022
12 p.m. - 1 p.m.

Learning Objectives

1. Relate and reflect on the concepts of Indigenous healing and Western medicine in the context of cancer.
2. Discover the principles of Indigenous healing and recognize why being responsive to Indigenous determinants of health requires wholistic care.
3. Apply your learning and discuss ways of braiding Indigenous and Western healing as culturally-safe care.

NOSM in Thunder Bay – ATAC 6022
NOSM in Sudbury – MSE 119

Speaker: Dr. Cindy Peltier

Dr. Peltier is Anishinaabe-kwe with connections to Wiikwemkoong Unceded Territory and Nipissing First Nation. She is the inaugural Chair in Indigenous Education at Nipissing University. Her former roles include teacher, principal, and research consultant serving several Anishinaabe communities in Ontario.

Dr. Peltier's research interests include the intersections of health, education, and Anishinaabe knowledge; the lived experiences of Anishinaabek with cancer and use of Indigenous healing, wellness; and community-based research methodologies.

Join Seminar via WebEx

NOSM
UNIVERSITY

Continuing Education and Professional Development

Please be sure to complete an evaluation after the seminar.

EVALUATION