Retinal biomarkers in patients with newly diagnosed cancer

A prospective pilot cohort study

The purpose of this research study is to find out if markers on retinal scans (picture of the inner eye) are different for people that have cancer compared to people that do not have cancer.

We are looking for participants with no previous cancer diagnosis. Your participation will involve a 15-20 minute appointment involving an eye scan and a quick questionnaire about who you are. Your parking costs for this appointment will be covered.

Participation in this research is voluntary. You may choose not to participate or withdraw from the study at any time with no consequences.

If you are interested in learning more, please contact the research team at (807) 684-7580 for information.
